Kindergarden: 2001-2002

This is a picture of the Spring Sing in kindergarden. The one thing that I remember the most about Kindergarden is the spring sing. We got to dress as angels and sing the song "This Little Light of Mine". I remember I liked the angel wings the most because if you moved around a lot you could hit people with them. This influenced the person I am today because now I know the person who said "violence isn't the answer" was wrong.

1st Grade: 2002-2003

This is a picture of me and the Pumpkin I made in 1st grade. The thing that I remember the most about 1st grade is when our class had a pumpkin making contest. There were 3 different categories. There was the prettiest, funniest, and the scariest. My pumpkin won the prettiest category. That influenced the person I am today because I learned it took a lot of work to make pretty things, so now I just buy them.

2nd Grade: 2003-2004

This is a picture of me drawing purple flowers in 2nd grade. The thing that I remember the most about 2nd grade was when we got to go outside and draw flowers. I decided to draw the purple ones because I really liked purple. This influenced who I am today because I still like drawing flowers, and purple is still one of my favorite colors.

3rd Grade: 2004-2005

This is an x-ray of someone's left hand. The thing that I remember the most about 3rd grade is when I broke my finger on a tetherball poll. It was about 20 minutes before we had to go on a field trip to the Ramsdell Theatre. I couldn't remember what the show was about because all I could feel was the throbbing in my finger. That affected the person I am today because my index finger is still a little crooked.

4th Grade: 2005-2006

This is a picture of the Mackinac Bridge. The thing that I remember the most about 4th grade was our trip to Mackinac Island. We had to wake up at 4 in the morning to get on the bus in time. Once we started driving on the bridge my nose started bleeding and I didn't know it, which was really embarrassing. That affected the person I am today because now I feel sorry for people who get nose bleeds a lot.

★ ★ 5th Grade: 2006-2007

This is a picture of our 5th grade band concert. The thing that I remember the most about 5th grade is our band concert. There was a hard solo for the flutes and everyone ditched us, and just pretended to be playing, so Lauren and I had to do it by ourselves. The whole concert was long and boring. This affected the person I am today, because I quit band a few years after that and now I'm happy I don't have to go to those anymore.

6th Grade: 2007-2008

This is a picture of some of our class on duct tape day in 6th grade. The thing that I remember the most about 6th grade is the first time we had duct tape day. I really liked it, but I didn't have any colored duct tape, so I had to use the regular kind. When I got home I tried to take it off of my pants and it made them all sticky. That affected the person I am today because now I have a lot of colored duct tape at my house, and I know not to put regular duct tape on my cloths.

7th Grade: 2008-2009

These are pictures of my cousins Dobby and Lilly. The thing that I remember the most about 7th grade is that was the year my cousin Dobby was born. Her name is actually Dahlia, but we called her Dolly. Since she can't say her l's yet and she talks in third person, she calls herself Dobby, and our family does too. This affected the person I am today because now I have really cute cousins that I get to watch all the time.

8th Grade: 2009-2010

This is a picture of me walking in the hallway in 8th grade. The thing that I remember the most about 8th grade was my pink Hollister tote bag. I really liked it when I saw it in the store so I bought it. I used it for the whole year and it still looked great. I think I still have it in my closet. That has affected the person I am today because now I know that Hollister things are really good quality, and that I should buy more things there.

9th Grade: 2010-2011

This is the picture of the pink ribbon we made earlier this year. The thing I remember the most of this year was when we all had to wear pink and make the shape of a breast cancer ribbon in the gym. I liked it because we got to wear pink and get out of class for 15 minutes. That has affected the person I am today because now I have a good reason to like pink so much.
